

OMAHA GIVES!

powered by the Omaha Community Foundation

NONPROFIT MARKETING TOOLKIT

Thank you for being a part of this community celebration. Whether this is your first year or sixth as a part of Omaha Gives!, we believe there is always room to build upon your marketing efforts around the giving day event. After all, the day is special because of what you put into it.

Approach your messaging with intention

When reaching out to the community, you should anticipate what will resonate with your audience, be able to answer the question, “Why should I give to them?” and identify instances where the messaging can be tailored to successfully reach various audiences.

Put yourself in their shoes and think about what will excite them, what is important to them and will move them to donate.

Use Omaha Gives! as a year-round communications tool

The purpose of the giving day stretches far beyond the day itself. Before the event is a great reason to reach out to the community, and afterwards, you have a pool of donors you didn't before.

Be sure to thank donors and take steps to grow the relationship. Let them know what resulted from the donations, and eventually donors can develop into long-term supporters and advocates.

Put some time into setting your organization up for success

If you are new to social media, understand that it's rare to cultivate a large following in a short period of time—so get acquainted with spending a few minutes per day learning the ropes.

While it's good to dream big, you may not reach your desired funding goal in the first year, and perhaps not all of your circle will donate or set up cheer pages.

SUGGESTED TIMELINE

2 MONTHS OUT (It's Never Too Early!)

- Brainstorm social media content ideas. If you're going to launch any new platforms (e.g. start a Facebook, Twitter, or Instagram), this would be the time.
- Think about who you know who may want to create a cheer page for your organization, and reach out.
- Make sure your entire office knows about Omaha Gives! so they can answer any incoming questions. Get your staff and volunteers involved!
- Make a plan to engage Omaha Gives! donors throughout the year.

3-4 WEEKS OUT

- Step up your communications through email, newsletters, social media, and other channels you currently use.
- Let people know they can schedule gifts May 1-May 22, or they can schedule a gift AND play on the big day for maximum fun.
- Do you have an event in May? Use this opportunity to promote Omaha Gives and remind your donors to give big on May 23!
- Continue to ask your supporters to help spread the word with their networks, perhaps through a cheer page.
- Plan and create email blast templates for use leading up to Omaha Gives!
- If you haven't already, now's the time to send a postcard/mailing reminding people about the big day.

1 WEEK OUT

- Start your countdown to the event via email and social media.
- Talk to your audiences about why Omaha Gives! is important to your organization.
- Make sure everyone is invited to any events you are planning for May 23.

1-2 DAYS OUT

- Remind your donors by email and social media.
- Emphasize your goals and make calls to action directing them where to give and promote giving at all hours to increase your chances for prize money.
- Ask for help spreading the word.
- Make it clear how to give. Direct your supporters to your profile on OmahaGives.org.

DURING OMAHA GIVES!

- Announce your totals on social media.
- Send out broad thank you communications and plan targeted thank yous to those who gave to your organization during Omaha Gives!
- Update your donors regularly on your fundraising progress. Remind them of your prize and contribution goals.
- Include specific asks throughout the day in your communications and emails. Ask people to spread the word to their friends.
- Wave the flag! Let your participation be known and use storytelling to encourage people to give. The louder you are this day on both social media and in a physical realm in Omaha, the more successful you will be.

SOCIAL MEDIA BEST PRACTICES

All Omaha Gives! donations are made online, which means social media will play an important role in your organization's visibility on May 23. Additionally, the website makes it easy for donors to share to their social media followers when they give. Strategize a media plan for the weeks leading up to Omaha Gives! as well as the day of the event. If you are not currently on social media, we recommend first focusing on Facebook.

- Explain how a donor's money will be put to use, and show examples.
- Engage your volunteers. Ask staff, board members, volunteers, and people you serve to be Facebook ambassadors on May 23 by sharing your updates and rooting for you throughout the day.
- Post often. Share creative attention grabbers, photos, and stories. Post updates about the amounts raised by your organization, any prizes won, and what a difference the funds raised can make for your organization. Consider using a theme throughout the day.
- Think visually. Photos and posts with links are much more likely to be seen and shared. If you are hosting an event—post images in real time! Write short, clear messages.
- Follow the Omaha Community Foundation Facebook, Twitter, and Instagram. We will be very active on social media leading up to and on May 23. Share what we post and connect with other participating nonprofits. Change your cover photo to the Omaha Gives! logo to show your involvement.
- Create a Facebook event for May 23. Even if your organization is not hosting a physical event during Omaha Gives!, sending out an invitation

The best Facebook posts include photo or video with a succinct message, though you have the freedom to write longer-form posts.

On Twitter, keep it short and tweet often. A consistent feed will keep your organization visible.

As a photograph-oriented platform, on Instagram it's best to post just that: eye-catching photo and video.

to participate in the giving day to your followers will get the day on their calendar and remind them to give. Don't forget to be very specific and include your organization's name in the event title!

- Use #OmahaGives in all your social media posts! We will be tracking this hashtag closely and curating content from it throughout the day. Using #OmahaGives will allow us to easily repost your successes and cheer you all on.
- Add Omaha Gives! visuals to your social media profiles and make sure you link your Omaha Gives! organization profile prominently, both on your social media profiles and on your posts.

Remember, be creative, make a plan, and have fun with it—this is a great opportunity to increase your social media following and connect with others in the community!

OG! Tip:
When you're creating graphics, note the American National Bank logo should always appear with the Omaha Gives! logo. Thank you for respecting the generosity of our presenting sponsor!

ENCOURAGE CHEER!

A Cheer Page is an online platform hosted on the Omaha Gives! website that allows individuals outside of a nonprofit to show support for one. Users create cheer page campaigns with a headline, photos, and their personal story of why they support a particular organization. They choose a personal fundraising goal—usually between $200 and $2,000—generate a shareable URL, and start spreading the word on their networks. This is an excellent way to donate time and talent to a favorite nonprofit.

This graphic is available to help you communicate Cheer Pages to your supporters and followers. Download it on the Toolkits page!

Encourage your key supporters to consider creating a cheer page in support of your nonprofit. The process is simple and allows for a much more personalized support approach that can advocate for donations and show tangible results.

But start early! Cheer Pages are submitted and approved by the nonprofit they're associated with, and the approval process closes on May 18, 2018. There is a Create a Cheer Page button on every nonprofit profile.

Pick a favorite nonprofit and set a fundraising goal.
