

AMERICAN NATIONAL BANK PRESENTS

OMAHA GIVES!

powered by the Omaha Community Foundation

BUSINESS MARKETING TOOLKIT

The support of companies like yours—and the people behind them—is essential to the success of an event like Omaha Gives! While Omaha Gives! is a year-round online giving platform, at its core, the most exciting, rewarding part is the main giving day event, happening this year on May 23, 2018 from midnight to midnight.

Adding fun and excitement to the give!

In addition to regular donations, participation and hourly prizes are awarded to nonprofits throughout the day—not to mention the momentum of watching the totals rise on the Omaha Gives! online leaderboard.

Rallying together behind a common cause

It's a great opportunity for your group to rally behind a common cause, whether that's support of the Omaha-Council Bluffs community in general, or a specific nonprofit of their choosing.

Your love for the community at work!

We've put together some ideas to get the excitement rolling, and help make a memorable, fun experience for your team.

TIPS & IDEAS

#1 - INVOLVE YOUR CEOs & EXECUTIVES

Studies show that executive involvement encourages employee engagement—seeing their supervisor or senior executive enthusiastic about the day will let employees know that the company supports the event, leading to greater probability of employee support.

Even better, encourage your executives to create a giving day competition. See who can get the most employee involvement in their business units or divisions, and track it in a visible location.

#2 - MAKE IT COMPETITIVE

Set up a local competition within your building or office location and coordinate with your colleagues from other companies. See who can raise the most funds in a certain hour or throughout the day, or better yet, if anyone can win a participation prize.

#3 - HOST FAVORITE NONPROFIT PARTNERS ON SITE

Remind your employees what Omaha Gives! is all about. You can use this charitable holiday as a way to build employee awareness about your company's signature nonprofit partners, while also encouraging employees to give to charities that are near and dear to their own hearts.

#4 - ENCOURAGE EMPLOYEES TO VOLUNTEER AT GIVING LOCATIONS

Encourage your employees to use their volunteer time off (if applicable) at local events throughout the metro area. Starting in mid-May, the Omaha Community Foundation will post a list of all Omaha Gives! events at OmahaGives.org.

#5 - HOST A GIVING PARTY IN OUR WORKPLACE OR BUILDING

Post visual reminders and have computers and devices available to help employees give on the spot.

If your company is in a shared building or office park, plan an event in a shared common area to attract your employees and employees from other companies alike.

#6 - COMMUNICATE, COMMUNICATE, COMMUNICATE

Use the sample communications, from emails to social media posts, to share information about Omaha Gives! with your networks.

Encourage your local nonprofit partners to register for the event and attend the information and training sessions.

Ask employees to spread the word to their friends, families and favorite nonprofits.

Inspire your company to get involved by hosting a giving station, a nonprofit event or simply spreading the word via social media.

Try to get out ahead of schedule to allow your employees to plan, and remind them along the way.

ENCOURAGE CHEER!

A Cheer Page is an online platform hosted on the Omaha Gives! website that allows individuals outside of a nonprofit to show support for one. Users create cheer page campaigns with a headline, photos, and their personal story of why they support a particular organization. They choose a personal fundraising goal—usually between $200 and $2,000—generate a shareable URL, and start spreading the word on their networks. This is an excellent way to donate time and talent to a favorite nonprofit.

Encourage employees to engage with cheer pages, whether that's by creating one as an individual or in a group, or reading through cheer pages posted by others. The process is simple and allows for a much more personalized support approach that can advocate for donations and show tangible results.

Start early! Cheer pages must be submitted and approved by the nonprofit they're associated with, and the approval process closes on May 18, 2018. Start by visiting OmahaGives.org and look for the Create a Cheer Page button on every nonprofit profile.

CHOOSE

Pick a favorite nonprofit and set a fundraising goal.

CREATE

Set up your cheer page and track your progress.

CHEER

Get loud and rally folks to give.

CELEBRATE

Have fun and say thanks as you meet your goals!

SOCIAL MEDIA TIPS

All Omaha Gives! donations are made online, which means social media will play an important role on May 23. Additionally, the website makes it easy for donors to share to their social media followers when they give.

MAKE GENEROUS USE OF IMAGES

Consider using a photo or graphic along with your text-based social media posts—these tend to engage your audience substantially better and encourage them to click the link. The Omaha Gives! logo, as well as a number of branded graphics are available for download on the Toolkits page at OmahaGives.org. Anyone and everyone has access to these graphics—including your employees. Encourage them to use them, too!

USE THE #OMAHAGIVES HASHTAG

On social media, include the hashtag #OmahaGives to further spread the word. Encourage your employees to do the same!

HAVE FUN WITH IT!

This is a great opportunity to support your employees in their charitable giving and to show off you and your employee's love for the community.

The best Facebook posts include photo or video with a succinct message, though you have the freedom to write longer-form posts.

On Twitter, keep it short and tweet often. A consistent feed will keep your organization visible.

As a photograph-oriented platform, on Instagram it's best to post just that: eye-catching photo and video.
